fact finding in judicial proceedings is a dynamic process this collection of papers considers whether computational methods or other formal logical methods developed in disciplines such as artificial intelligence decision theory and probability theory can facilitate the study and management of dynamic evidentiary and inferential processes in litigation the papers gathered here have several epicenters including i the dynamics of judicial proof ii the relationship between artificial intelligence or formal analysis and common sense iii the logic of factual inference including a the relationship between causality and inference and b the relationship between language and factual inference

iv the logic of discovery including the role of abduction and serendipity in the process of investigation and proof of factual matters and v the relationship between decision and inference the relationship of law to economic freedom has been a vital element in the history of all modern democratic societies freedom of contract is both a technical term in law referring to private agreements and promises and a metaphor often deployed to describe economic liberty this volume of new essays by eminent legal historians offers fresh perspectives on freedom of contract in both senses of the term and considers how economic freedom relates to such classic political freedoms as free speech and other anglo american constitutional norms the principal focus of the essays is on broad issues of policy and law rather than on narrow considerations of legal doctrine all the contributors reject stereotypes that pervade the existing literature about the allegedly unalloyed individualism of the common law and show how active state interventions of various kinds have shaped contract law in relation to social change throughout our legal history equally however they reject shibboleths regarding bringing the state back in and take a hard look at the claims of statist ideology regarding the norms and rules that have established the legal boundaries of liberty in the modern industrial and post industrial eras the topics covered are blackstone s claim that property was the despotic dominion of the private owner a w b simpson labor and contract john v orth the influence of philosophical trends on legal innovations james gordley contract and individualism david lieberman the tradition of public rights harry n scheiber the formal concept of liberty of contract in american law charles mccurdy the interwoven history of labor law and contract law arthur mcevoy public policy in relation to natural resources donald pisani and globalization of freedom of contract martin shapiro

according to judith baer feminist legal scholarship today does not effectively address the harsh realities of women s lives feminists have marginalized themselves she argues by withdrawing from mainstream intellectual discourse in our lives before the law baer thus presents the framework for a new feminist jurisprudence one that would return feminism to relevance by connecting it in fresh and creative ways with liberalism baer starts from the traditional feminist premise that the legal system has a male bias and must do more to help women combat violence and overcome political economic and social disadvantages she argues however that feminist scholarship has over corrected for this bias by emphasizing the ways in which the system fails women feminists have lost sight of how it can be used to promote women s interests and have made it easy for conventional scholars to ignore legitimate feminist concerns in particular feminists have wrongly linked the genuine flaws of conventional legal theory to its basis in liberalism arguing that liberalism focuses too heavily on individual freedom and not enough on individual responsibility in fact baer contends liberalism rests on a presumption of personal responsibility and can be used as a powerful intellectual foundation for holding men and male institutions more accountable for their actions the traditional feminist approach baer writes has led to endless debates about such abstract matters as character differences between men and women and has failed to deal sufficiently with concrete problems with the legal system she thus constructs a new feminist interpretation of three central components of conventional theory equality rights and responsibility through analysis of such pressing legal issues as constitutional interpretation reproductive choice and fetal protection baer concludes by presenting the outline of what she calls feminist post liberalism an approach to jurisprudence that not only values individual freedoms but also recognizes our responsibility for addressing individuals needs however different those may be for men and women powerfully and passionately written our lives before the law will have a major impact on the future course of feminist legal scholarship
