the globalization of trade investment and finance continues apace many have benefited from this but deep inequalities persist this book argues that the interconnections established by globalization make possible a critique of its inequality for those who take seriously human dignity equality is a basic presumption of social institutions inequality is currently gaining considerable attention in academic policy and media circles from thomas piketty to robert putnam there is no shortage of economic sociological or political analyses but what does anthropology with its focus on the qualitative character of relationships between people have to offer drawing on current scholarship and illustrative ethnographic case studies mcgill argues that anthropology is particularly well suited to interrogating global inequality not just within nations but across nations as well the book is designed to be used flexibly in a variety of undergraduate classes from introductory cultural anthropology to courses on globalization economic and political anthropology and inequality brief accessibly written and peppered with vivid ethnographic examples that bring contemporary research to life global inequality is a unique offering for undergraduate anthropology courses african scholarship concerning the nexus between institutions and development is still dominated by the economic perspective of development despite the emergence of the humanistic perspective of development the humanistic perspective is a more embracing encompassing and comprehensive view of development than its economic counterpart and offers a better explanation of the african situation it is essential to examine the relationships between democratic political institutions and human development this collection examines democratic institutions and processes in post independence africa the contributors examine the political institutional processes in post colonial africa evaluating the workings of institutions such as education bureaucracy interest groups trade unions and problems of enforcements in africa it also discusses the relevance of creative arts for political socialization as well as the role effects of privatization on service delivery in contemporary african societies thinking on development informs and inspires the actions of people organizations and states in their continuous effort to invent a better world this volume examines the ideas behind development their origins how they have changed and spread over time and how they may evolve over the coming decades it also examines how the real life experiences of different countries and organizations have been inspired by and contributed to thinking on development the extent to which development works depends in part on particular local historical or institutional contexts general policy prescriptions fail when the necessary conditions that make them work are either absent ignored or poorly understood there is a need to grasp how people understand their own development experience if the countries of the world are varied in every way from their initial conditions to the degree of their openness to outside money and influence and success is not centred in any one group it stands to reason that there cannot be a single recipe for development each chapter provides an analytical survey of thinking about development that highlights debates and takes into account critical perspectives it includes contributions from scholars and practitioners from the global north and the global south spanning at least two generations and multiple disciplines it will be a key reference on the concepts and theories of development their origins evolution and trajectories and act as a resource for scholars graduate students and practitioners this two volume encyclopedia of global justice published by springer along with springer s book series studies in global justice is a major publication venture toward a comprehensive coverage of this timely topic the encyclopedia is an international interdisciplinary and collaborative project spanning all the relevant areas of scholarship related to issues of global justice and edited and advised by leading scholars from around the world the wide ranging entries present the latest ideas on this complex subject by authors who are at the cutting edge of inquiry the encyclopedia sets the tone and direction of this increasingly important area of scholarship for years to come the entries number around 500 and consist of essays of 300 to 5000 words the inclusion and length of entries are based on their significance to the topic of global justice regardless of their importance in other areas as global governance appears to become more inclusive and democratic many scholars argue that international institutions act as motors of expansion and democratization the closure of the international system challenges this view arguing that the history of the international system is a series of institutional closures in which institutions such as diplomacy international law and international organizations make rules to legitimate the inclusion of some actors and the exclusion of others while international institutions facilitate collective action and common goods viola s closure thesis demonstrates how these gains are achieved by limiting access to rights and resources creating a stratified system of political equals and unequals the coexistence of equality and hierarchy is a constitutive feature of the international system and its institutions this tension is relevant today as multilateral institutions are challenged by disaffected citizens non western powers and established great powers discontent with the distribution of political rights and authority the book provides a systematic assessment of the evolution of development theory its relationship to orthodox social science analysis and the liberal pluralistic orthodoxy that now dominates the mainstream approach to international development showing how we can transcend its failure to address some key problems of late and uneven development this paper investigates the importance of accounting for the profile of inequality in the analysis of institutional trust drawing on individual data from 82 countries around the world over the 1981 2021 period it sheds light on the potential limitations of exploring the impact of the income distribution s shape on trust using as is traditional in the literature a single inequality indicator results suggest that total income inequality and institutional trust are positively associated but this aggregated result hides some troubling countervailing effects in fact when the whole profile of inequality is considered institutional trust appears to be significantly and negatively related to inequality between different income groups in society namely between the poor the middle class and the rich whereas it is positively associated with inequality within those income groups although some heterogeneities in these findings can be detected according to the country s level of development as well as according to personal characteristics related to political views the profile of inequality does always matter thus this paper indicates that limiting the analysis to one single inequality aggregator would only capture an average effect and hide a more complex underlying nexus between income distribution and institutional trust as one half of the latest edition of immanuel wallerstein s political economy of the world system series this collection offers cutting edge theoretical directions to explain the structural crises of the 21st century world system contributors argue that the capitalist world system has reached a critical bifurcation point a short period which will be characterized by a sudden shift in the long term structural forces that have created and sustained the world as we know it writers challenge conventional thinking about the most significant structural crises that face the 21st century world system including terrorism debt the growth of megacities as global actors the emergence of a powerful transnational capitalist class and the world ecological crisis in an increasingly globalised world it is becoming ever more difficult for nation states to adapt to the international consequences of market failures government failures and global externalities without co operation and co ordination with other countries in the absence of any form of world government the most effective solution to this problem is either to create new international institutions reform existing ones or work within the prevailing institutional framework this book presents a critical analysis of the role of international institutions and their performance in terms of justification effectiveness and efficiency the authors begin by discussing the controversies surrounding the tobin tax in the context of global governance they move on to address important global issues where international institutions play a significant role these include trade and fdi in relation to the wto and the reconciliation of order and justice in the international trading system further chapters investigate development issues and international institutions most of which were not designed for the specific needs of developing countries they assess whether international institutions can actually help to mitigate the tendency of uneven development in the global economy finally the focus switches to the analysis and evaluation of one specific institution and its actions namely the bank for international settlements bis this important theoretical and empirical analysis of the problems relating to the creation evolution and role of international institutions will be of interest and value to academics and researchers of international trade international economics international relations and economic development

a historical introduction to the world economy and globalisation showing that while we live in a globally interconnected economy states are still fundamental actors within this the paper documents the large cross country differences in labor institutions that make them a candidate explanatory factor for the divergent economic performance of countries and reviews what economists have learned about the effects of these institutions on economic outcomes it identifies three ways in which institutions affect economic performance by altering incentives by facilitating efficient bargaining and by increasing information communication and trust the evidence shows that labor institutions reduce the dispersion of earnings and income inequality which alters incentives but finds equivocal effects on other aggregate outcomes such as employment and unemployment given weaknesses in the cross country data on which most studies focus the paper argues for increased use of micro data simulations and experiments to illuminate how labor institutions operate and affect outcomes
