seminar paper from the year 2011 in the subject didactics for the subject english discussion and essays grade 1-7 university of cologne language english abstract the acting president of the united states of america barack obama fascinated millions of us

citizens in many of his campaign speeches in 2008 with his slogan yes we can he offered them a new believable perspective finally this wave of euphoria brought him to the white house and made him contrary to all expectations the first black us president i looked fascinated and interested at all important incidents happening in the usa in 2008 and i just wondered why it was possible to this man like no other person to fill so many people in this great country with enthusiasm and to give them a new hope of a better future looking back on these events and irrespective of the fact if his goals were achieved or not i ask myself which values ideas and aims made the people so absolutely excited and how they were influenced by obama if you only take a superficial view on this issue it already becomes clear that the very popular american dream which is based on american history is and was one of the important subjects of obama s speeches how obama uses this dream and the way he updates and enlarges it should be the central question of this thesis in order to do so it is at first important to take a close look at barack obama his curriculum vitae and his political rising on the other hand i want to present the history of the american dream as well as a preferably general but handy definition of what the american dream actually is and what it wants to express based on this a detailed analysis of certain speeches of obama with a special focus on the american dream follows outgoing from the results of the analysis i will examine how obama encloses the dream in his way of argumentation the different values he refers to and the influence of different audiences on the usage of the american dream in order to answer the general question of this thesis explained above in a good and suitable way these points will be synoptically summarized in the conclusion of course it is impossible to take a serious look at all his speeches or to pick up every single aspect of the american dream coming up during american history as this would exceed the extent of this essay nonetheless a coherent objective and differentiated answer to the general question should be the goal and claim of this thesis seminar paper from the year 2013 in the subject didactics for the subject english applied geography grade noch nicht bekannt language english abstract in 2008 a promise of hope and change especially for americans but also for all others went around the world yes we can was a synonym for the american dream it was first said by a candidate of the democratic party who wanted to become the first african american president but obama was not the first politician who wanted to follow the citizen s wish for improvement of an old system and more humanity forty six years before another man told all americans that we can do better the meaning and choice of words is quite similar both talked about solidarity a wind of change and equality of all people because we means everybody without exceptions but is it only the slogan which shows similarities of both or do they have more in common than this and why is research and knowledge about it necessary in my opinion we should have a constant awareness and knowledge about failures and procedures in the past also in foreign affairs in view of their influence on our current and future situation as the biggest economic and military power the united states of america have had huge influence on europe and the rest of the world to understand and analyse america s policy it is best to focus on its head of state the president so i concentrated on the current democratic president barack obama by comparing him to the former democratic president john f kennedy often barack obama is called the black kennedy as a person on whom hopes are focused like on kennedy in the past to analyse more deeply biographies made by their companions and contemporary journalists are needed internet platforms and blogs give also interesting insights and points of criticism which are partly sabotaged by public authorities or by the kennedy clan by enquiry on the current president a very low amount of information about his private life and his background is officially known
